

I support the ARRL's plan. I believe it will provide a better foundation for amateur radio as a whole. By enacting this plan the FCC will have provided a stepping stone for additional emergency communications when they are needed. This will also provide more amateurs an opportunity to experiment with different modes of propagation then they had previously. The benefit of this will show itself as we lose our experianced operators to SK's. This will also keep American amateur communications up to par with that of the rest of the world.
